

and successively defeated, either on the first trial or on reconsideration.—In the afternoon, Mr. Barringer brought forward a proposition to locate the seat of government within ten miles of the centre of the State, to be ascertained by commissioners, which was at first agreed to; but on a motion to reconsider, a debate sprung up upon the constitutional duty of the Legislature on this subject, which had not been brought to a close when this paragraph was written."

Important for Illinois.—The Chicago Express contains the following important intelligence, showing that the Canal between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river will probably be recommenced in a short time and completed without serious delay:

"We are extremely happy to state that a letter has been received in this place from a gentleman in New York well known to many of our citizens, conveying highly favorable intelligence with regard to the Canal loan, and perhaps all that could be desired. The letter is dated on the 23d ult., and is as follows:

"Dear Sir—I have only time to say that I have received undoubted information of the success of the Illinois Commissioners. They have induced the Barings, Rothschilds, and Morgans, Smith & Co., to send out an agent to make the preliminary arrangements for the recommencement of the canal."

British Claim to the Oregon.—The last Edinburgh Review contains a long article on the Oregon region, and the writer earnestly calls on the British government to possess itself of the unoccupied tract which it says is the last corner of the earth left free for the occupation of a civilized race. The subjoined characteristic extract will show the zeal that exists on the subject.

"The land which is to command the North Pacific, and give the law to its myriad islands, cannot long remain unoccupied. It calls loudly on those who have foresight—on those who can estimate the promise of the future—to show themselves deficient in the exercise of political wisdom.—There are familiar with what we can scarcely exaggerate—the rapid march of time in the western world."

"Surely it well behooves us who have an interest in every new corner of the earth, to note the sign of these changes and turn them to our profit when we may. And one thing strikes us forcibly. However the political question between England and America, as to the ownership of Oregon may be decided, Oregon will never be colonized over land from the Eastern States. It is with a view of pointing out the entire distinctness of the two regions that we have gone, perhaps at tedious length, into a description of the geographical peculiarities of the vast space which separates them."

PASS IT ALONG THE LINE.—Senator Franklin, a professed "hard money" man, says that "the people are not yet prepared for it."

The Advertiser and other hard money papers, say the same thing.—And the common sense of every one says that "we must have banks in Ohio, or depend on other States for such trash as they may please to furnish us with; for it is an idle dream in any one to expect a gold and silver currency here while they have a bank currency in every other place around us. Senator Bartley's law of last winter is ascertained to be no go. What is to be done? The law itself points out the remedy, "alter and amend" it.—[Ohio True Democrat.]

Col. R. M. Johnson.—Some of the Whig prints have denominated Col. Johnson, the "fictitious Hero of the Thames," and the "legendary slayer of Tecumseh." A Lexington paper in reply, very justly remarks:

"If Col. Johnson be the 'fictitious hero of the Thames,' where will he be found the real hero of that day? Are the five wounds which he received in that battle, the scars of which he still bears, fictitious? Is it a fiction that he gallantly led the forlorn hope? Is it a fiction that he was the only man in twenty, who formed the forlorn hope, that was left in the saddle? Is it a fiction that when carried from the field in a blanket, the blood ran over his edges? Is it a fiction that he more highly distinguished himself by his undaunted bravery than any other officer in that action? Is it a fiction that Congress voted him a sword for the gallantry and patriotism which he displayed on the field of the Thames? Are these things all fictions, and is the history of the country, in which these are recorded also a fiction?"

A RASCALLY CONTRIVANCE.—A fellow was arrested and examined at the police office a few days since, on a charge of pocket-picking. He had a beautiful ring on one of his fingers, which attracted considerable attention. A nearer inspection proved it to be something more than a ring.—On pressing a spring neatly "fixed" upon the inner rim of the ring, a small, keen, crescent-shaped blade, nearly half an inch in length, made its appearance. We can conceive of no contrivance better calculated to aid the pickpocket in his peculiar vocation than this. With common care and a liberal share of adroitness he can cut pockets with great facility, nor expose himself to much danger in the operation.—[Albany Citizen.]

Mr. O'Connell and the St. Louis Repeal Association.—The papers by the Caledonia furnish us information of the reception of the resolutions of the St. Louis Repeal Association and the disposition made of them by Mr. Tom Steele. Walmer's News Letter says:

"On Tuesday evening last as Tom Steele was entering the Corn Exchange, a large packet was put into his hands, which had arrived by the Acadia. Great anxiety was naturally manifested as to the contents of the precious parcel; it being fully expected to contain another remittance from the worthy sympathizers across the Atlantic. Judge, then, the head practitioner's mortification on finding that it was nothing more substantial than 'several pages of MSS. letter from Mr. Grace, corresponding secretary of the St. Louis (Mo.) Repeal Association, strongly and rudely condemning the anti-slavery speech of the Liberator,' with a modest request that Mr. Steele would lay the same before the Loyal National Repeal Association for their consideration. The course which the head practitioner adopted, was worthy at once of the man and the matter.—He enclosed all the unpublishable documents back to the 'corresponding secretary,' with the emphatic observation, 'that Mr. Steele is not to be made the medium of a communication disrespectful to his great leader!' I the American journals, last received, are to be credited, it is likely that similar tokens of 'sympathy' to the forementioned will be of more frequent occurrence than they were heretofore."

We understand that Mr. Grace, the corresponding Secretary, yesterday received "the precious parcel," enclosed as above said. It was brought out by the Caledonia. We are, we confess, a little curious to see what friendhood the draft for one thousand dollars, remitted to Mr. O'Connell three or four weeks after the despatch of the above resolutions. Was that rejected too, as an unpublishable document, or will the Liberator pocket "the draft" and the affront?—Err.

Sowing Wheat.—An impression prevails that our wheat is generally too thickly seeded, and that much larger crops would be the result of a free use of grain. Captain Barclay, the intelligent Scotchman who made an agricultural tour of the United States in 1841, earnestly urged upon Mr. Marx, whose farm he visited in this vicinity, to increase his allowance to four bushels an acre, the quantity usually given by British farmers. He thought the liability to winter killing in this country made even a great allowance desirable.—The editor of the American Farmer says:

"We would suggest that in every instance where wheat may be sown, that the ground undergo thorough preparation, and that all should consider deep ploughing and repeated harrowings essential operations."

"We would advise, that if the land may not have been previously lined that from five to ten bushels of lime per acre be sown thereon, or an equal quantity of ash. These quantities are small, but will be found sufficient for the uses of a season. And wherever wheat may be sown on a clover-leaf, we would sow from two to four bushels of salt to the acre."

"We would, by all means, be particular in the selection of good seed, having due regard to weight of grain, strength of straw, earliness of maturity, and quality of flour."

"We would not have any wheat sown, without having it first thoroughly washed in pure water and then soaked in a brine of salt that would bear an egg or potatoe, for twenty-four hours, which, when taken out, should be drained, and then dried in lime. We are the more particular in insisting upon this mode of preparing seed wheat, because we have noticed many accounts of injury to the crops during the late season from smut, a disease perfectly within the control of the wheat-grower, and which can never occur but from culpable neglect, as the means we have pointed out, we do know, will prevent its occurrence."

"While we are upon the subject, let us advise all wheat growers to give to their land a bountiful allowance of seed, as, should he fail to do this, the bare portions of his soil will call into being some of those numerous weeds, the seeds of which are always at hand, to occupy spots left by the neglect of the husbandman. He that wants a clean field of wheat must fill that field with wheat plants. If he does not commit a sufficient quantity of seed to the earth, nature will not supply them, but she will supply a crop of pestilent weeds to rob his wheat plants of their food, diminish his crop, and thus punish him for neglect of duty."

Mr. Editor:—A question puzzles me; one which I wish to invite the attention of the considerate and reflecting.

Is it probable that any man, whom nature did not design for a regular built blackguard, ever was guilty of squirting his tobacco juice over the floor of a dwelling or meeting house?

This is a question of much practical importance—affecting the "better half of creation"—and I hope, in the name of every thing that is nasty, filthy and disgusting, that some learned Polemic or Lyceum, whose decision shall have the validity of law, will soon settle it.

If the ladies could but know that they were not expected to keep clean houses, or to clothe themselves in apparel when going to church which could be injured by being bedaubed with tobacco juice, it might save them a "heap" of trouble.
